

Craig Lind

Craig practiced as a solicitor in civil and commercial litigation for 18 years (16 of those years as a practice partner) prior to going to the bar in 2016. Craig's expertise and professional interests are in the areas of insurance, professional negligence and personal injury law, which forms the core of his current professional practice. Craig is regularly briefed by many of the major insurers, both national and international. Craig has always had a balanced practice acting for both plaintiffs and defendants and continues to do so in practice at the bar. Craig has particular professional interest in catastrophic and complex injury claims
